

How to use Clickfree Backup Software.

1. To start your backup, connect your external hard disk drive into an available USB port on your computer.
2. A box will pop up on screen, and you will be asked if you wish to use this drive to backup. Choose "Yes".

3. Another Clickfree window will appear. A countdown will start. You do not need to click anything as Clickfree will automatically start a backup once the countdown is finished. Alternatively, you can click on the "start" button to run the backup manually.

4. When the backup is completed you can now then close the Clickfree window and removed your external hard drive safely.

NOTES:

- If Clickfree does not start automatically when you connect your external HDD, you can run it manually by double clicking the Clickfree icon on your desktop or in start menu, and select your external hard drive.
- When connecting all forms of external storage (such as USB drive, Mobile Phones and SD cards) to your machine, Clickfree may automatically open and attempt to run a backup. Make sure you choose "No" or click on the "X" button when asked to run the backup to one of these devices.
